Telepresence/Virtual Court Appearance Etiquette/Guide

Conducting a virtual court appearance, either through Zoom video or telephonically, will require you to adhere to the following guidelines:

- Join or call into the meeting at least 5 minutes before your hearing date and time. Be sure to check you equipment well prior to this date and time, to be sure your device or phone functions properly.
- Do not speak over individuals. Only one person should speak at any given time.
- When you do speak, be sure to announce yourself by name (“This is Sam Jones, and I would like to say...”).
- If you are on video, be sure to frame your camera correctly, with your face in the center of the screen. Your background should be neutral, (like a clear wall) and absent of anything that may be perceived as offensive. Additionally, if you are on video, be sure to wear clothing appropriate for the formal court environment.
